Denver International Airport To Offer Tiered Parking Rates

DENVER – Jan. 12, 2018 – For the first time, Denver International Airport (DEN) will offer tiered parking rates in its popular economy and valet lots, based on length of stay.

Beginning Feb. 15, passengers using the east or west economy parking lots will pay $16 per day for the first three days of a visit, with that rate reduced to just $15 per day for each additional day during the same trip. Hourly rates in the economy lots will be $4. Valet parking rates will be $33 per day for the first three days, followed by just $10 per day for subsequent days during a consecutive stay. Hourly valet service will be available at rates of $16 for the first hour, and $4 for each additional hour.

Additionally, some maximum daily parking rates will also change as follows: East and West Garage: $25 daily, $4 per hour; Short-term parking: $5 per hour.

DEN's competitive price of just $8 per day for the Pikes Peak and Mt. Elbert shuttle lots will remain unchanged. The airport also continues to offer guaranteed close spaces by reserving a space in either garage for an additional fee of $4 per day, by visiting www.DIAReservedParking.com.

All of DEN's parking options come with free vehicle services that include jump starts, tire inflation and car key retrieval if they've been locked in a vehicle. The airport even provides assistance finding lost vehicles. Any of these services are available by calling (303) 342-4645, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Real-time parking information is available via electronic signs along inbound Peña Boulevard or by calling 303-DIA-PARK, option 1, and at www.FlyDenver.com.

DEN currently offers more than 44,000 public parking spaces. In 2017, more than 4.7 million vehicles parked at the airport.
