Fashion in Flight Exhibit Showcases Cabin Crew Style

DENVER – Jan. 26, 2021 – From the fashion runway to the airport runway, stylish and trendy flight crew uniforms have stood the test of time for nearly 100 years. Fashion in Flight, Denver International Airport’s (DEN) new art exhibition, displays over 40 flight crew uniforms and accessories from multiple airlines that span from the 1930s to current day.

The Fashion in Flight exhibit showcases the uniform designs influenced by era, fashion trends, functionality and the globe-trotting flight crew themselves. Uniform design ranges from the military-inspired skirt suits of the 1930s and 1940s, bright colors from the 1970s and 1980s, pinstripes and shoulder pads of the 1990s and finally couture designers influencing fashion-forward uniform collections for major airlines thereafter. Unlike any other mode of transportation, the aviation industry has always embraced safety in style.

Participating airlines include Aeromexico, British Airways, Delta Airlines, Delta Flight Museum, Frontier Airlines, JetBlue Airways, Southwest Airlines, Spirit Airlines, United Airlines, United Airlines Historical Foundation.

Passengers can view the exhibit located in Ansbacher Hall in the Jeppesen Terminal on Level 6 North before A-Bridge Security. For those waiting to travel, view the exhibit online by clicking here.

Denver International Airport is the fifth-busiest airport in the United States. With more than 69 million passengers traveling through the airport each year, DEN is one of the busiest airline hubs in the world’s largest aviation market. DEN is the primary economic engine for the state of Colorado, generating more than $33 billion for the region annually.
